

La Guardia Names Miss Delafield As His Secretary

Suffragists Rejoice at Appointment of War Worker in Appreciation of Women's Campaign Efforts

Miss Charlotte Delafield, a wealthy suffragist and war worker, has been appointed secretary to F. H. La Guardia, President-elect of the Board of Aldermen.

Miss Delafield has been active in Republican politics ever since women got the vote and was vice-chairman of the Women's La Guardia Campaign Committee. She had charge of the noon, day street meetings at which she and Mr. La Guardia addressed the voters at factory and department store doors.

The announcement from Washington of her appointment was hailed with glee by women politicians yesterday as recognition of the work of the women in electing Mr. La Guardia and defeating Tammany.

Salary Is No Object

Miss Delafield scarcely will need her salary of $2,400 a year, however, as she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Livingston Delafield, of 20 West Fifty-eighth Street. She has been known in feminine political circles as a hard worker ever since she made a house-to-house canvass of her district under Mrs. Norman de K. Whitehouse in the suffrage campaign of 1917. On Election Day this year she worked as a watcher from 6 o'clock in the morning until the polls closed, without taking time for lunch.

Mr. La Guardia in announcing her appointment said:

"Miss Delafield is an expert on municipal matters. I have asked her to look up some pressing school matters and conditions in the Department of Correction that were brought to my attention. She is a hard worker and has devoted much of her time to the study of conditions in New York City."

Miss Delafield Out of Town

Miss Delafield was out of town yesterday, and it was said at her home that she would make no statement as to her plans until tomorrow. Governor Smith was the first President of the Board of Aldermen to appoint a woman secretary. Miss Rose Pedrick was his appointee, and she was retained by Robert L. Moran, his successor.

Brooklyn Republicans said yesterday that Mr. La Guardia had appointed also as his assistant Charles S. Devo, former County Clerk of Brooklyn and Republican leader of the 7th Assembly District, but no confirmation of this came from Washington. Mr. La Guardia will be in the city tomorrow to confer with Republican leaders over other appointments.

Mr. Devo is now appraiser in the inheritance tax department of the State Comptroller's office, at a salary of $4,000. The position in the Board of Aldermen's office pays $5,500.

War Records Being Issued

Each State to Get Report on Service of Each Soldier

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The record of military service of each man who served in the European war is to be furnished the adjutant general of the various states by the War Department in pursuance of an act of Congress, the War Department announced today.

A special force of clerks in the office of Adjutant General Harris has begun the work of securing from the adjutant general a statement of the military service of each soldier from that state.

The work covers more than 4,000,000 names, and every effort is being made to complete the task by the close of the fiscal year, June 30, 1920. Upon its completion every state will have a complete record of all the soldiers who served from that state.

Methodists Get $10,950,936

Centenary Receipts Show $4,000,000 Gain Over Last Year

Methodist Centenary receipts this year totaled $10,950,936, a gain of more than $4,000,000 over last year, according to report made public yesterday by Dr. George M. Owens, joint Centenary treasurer. Of the total amount received, $7,344,984 came from the treasurer of the Centenary movement. The balance was received directly by the eight benevolent organizations of the church.

From the Centenary fund of $7,344,984, disbursements were made as follows: American Bible Society, $42,600; General Deacons Board, $10,765; Board of Education, $177,882; Board of Foreign Missions, $536,085; Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, $3,848,300; Board of Sunday School, $99,752; Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, $37,183; Freedman's Aid Society, $122,323.

Plan to Help Crippled Service Men Expanded

Government to Pay All Expenses for Hospital or Home Treatment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Former service men who need medical or surgical treatment because of illness or injury contracted in the army or navy hereafter can enter an army hospital, Public Health Service hospital or local civilian institution or sanitarium, and have all expenses paid by the government, the War Department announced today.

"If there is no representative of the Health Service in the ex-soldier's home town, and no army hospital at hand, and it is possible for him to travel," says the official bulletin, "such traveling expenses, hospital expenses and wages lost while undergoing examination will be paid by the government, should it be decided that treatment is necessary."

"On the other hand, if the physical condition of the man makes it impossible for him to travel, he will be examined and treated at his home. In special cases where it is found that a change of climate will be beneficial, travel will be sent to specially designated hospitals."

Dr. Derby Heads Veterans' Readjustment Committee

Dr. Richard Derby, son-in-law of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, was announced yesterday as chairman of the Readjustment Committee for Former Service Men, the organization formed to take over the work of the Readjustment Bureau at 500 Penn. Street. Other members of the committee are Arthur Woods, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Grayson M. P. Murphy, William F. Morgan, Dwight W. Morrow and Herbert N. Searles.

The executive committee of the American Legion, New York branch, met yesterday and unanimously endorsed the readjustment committee. It was announced that the work of finding civilian jobs for war veterans would continue at least through the winter.

Good Morning!

Employers: Do you have need for boys?

It is easy to insert an advertisement that will fill your office with professional job-hunters—boys of inferior quality—but real, live, red-blooded Americans—ah, that's different!

How are you to secure boys of the right kind? We can show you one good way.

Choose a newspaper circulating among men and women of intelligence and far-sightedness, who believe in Americanism and industrious effort, and then make your appeal to them as parents of the type of boys you wish to employ, showing the advantages and opportunities your concern offers to beginners.

This plan has been used with excellent results in The New York Tribune—a paper excelled by none for quality of circulation, appealing, as it does, to 100% Americans. Why not try us on this method? Just phone Beckman 3000—Classified Department—and dictate your ad. We'll bill you later.

"Marouf" Finely Sung; Dramatic Force Enhanced

Albert Wolff, as Conductor, Shortens Action of Metropolitan Offering and Meets Audience's Approval

Henri Rabaud's "Marouf" was sung yesterday afternoon at the Metropolitan Opera House. "Marouf" is now in its third season, a rare thing in any novelty and a still rarer one in a French novelty. Yet yesterday's audience was of excellent size and it listened with apparent interest. Albert Wolff, who was conducting the opera for the first time in New York, had made multitudinous cuts, shortening the action by nearly twenty minutes and generally strengthening the dramatic fibre and hastening the action.

In opera it is indeed a stupid cut which does no good. Mr. Wolff, in addition, infused a life into his reading which had been lacking in that of his predecessor.

The music of "Marouf" wears well; or, rather, a greater compliment than that, it improves upon acquaintance. It is not melodically inspired, as M. Rabaud is an eclectic who has taken from wherever it has pleased him. But M. Rabaud knows his business. He is a master of the orchestra, and his palette is rich in Oriental color. He has written a complicated yet with a clear and definite score, and for the exposition of his talent he has chosen, and wisely chosen, the Orient.

If we might wish for more spontaneous melody, for greater lyricism of expression, we received at least a score which possesses color, charm and rhythmic fancy.

The cast, with the exception of the chief sailor of Octave Dua, was the same as last year. Mr. De Luca was the Marouf, and though it is not one of his most completely satisfying parts it is an intelligent and moderately humorous impersonation.

Mme. Alda, though she sings the part admirably, is not perhaps at her best as the Princess except to the eye, and then she is at her very best. Great is the power of the understanding—and in this case we must make it plain. Mr. Rothier, Mr. Chalmers, Miss Howard, Mr. Ananiam, Mr. Badi and Mrs. Dua all do their parts most satisfactorily.

M. Joseph Mardones sang the part of Mephistopheles in Gounod's "Faust" for the first time at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. He was a rollicking fellow, dressed not in the conventional crimson garb, but in the ordinary apparel of a wealthy knight of the period. He sang effectively and acted with a jovial assurance in keeping with the character. Although refusing to be quoted, counsel allowed it to be known the master had found that the trustees had established their contention that there was in no way subordinate to the directors, and that the two boards were interdependent and that the directors had no legal power to reprimand or remove members of the board of trustees.

The trustees, Herbert W. Eastie, of Boston; David B. Ogden, of Brooklyn, and Lamont Rowlands, of Plainville, Miss., filed their bill in equity in the State Supreme Court after the directors had removed Rowlands from the board of trustees on the ground that he had "allowed a sense of self-interest to interfere with the interests of Christian Science." The court granted a temporary injunction and after hearings referred the case to Judge Dodge as master.

The dispute arose from different interpretations of a deed of trust executed by Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church. The directors ended this deed gave them full powers over the trustees. The trustees contended that the directors' power was limited and that they had no right to remove any member of the board of trustees.

Legion Elects Treasurer

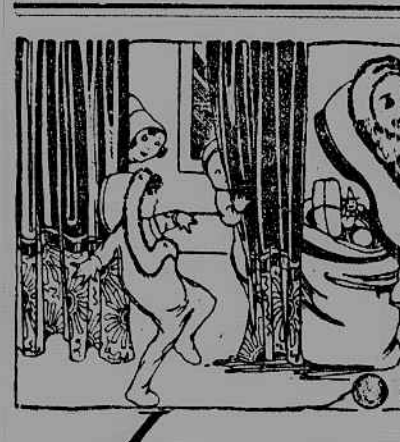

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 20.—Robert H. Tyndall, of Indianapolis, former commander of the 150th Field Artillery, was elected national treasurer of the American Legion by the national executive committee today. Tyndall succeeds Gaspar Bacon, of Boston, who was elected at the convention in Minneapolis. Bacon refused to serve.

"Playland" to Open

Grand Central Palace Carnival Will Last Until December 27

"Playland," a Christmas carnival for children, will open to-morrow at the Grand Central Palace, under the auspices of the Red Cross, the American Legion, the New York Community Service and a dozen other organizations. The festival, which will continue until December 27, is intended fundamentally as an exposition of Americanization.

A Christmas tree, fifty feet high, on which will hang a gift for every child, a Punch and Judy show, a real circus and many other attractions will be there. To-morrow night Edwin Franko Goldman's band will play a program of all-American music, and the operetta "The Pied Piper" will be presented with 300 children in the cast. The scheme is to provide an afternoon of fun for every school child in the city.

Christmas Throngs Fill Hotels, Choke Railroads

Hope of a "Wet" Yuletide Draws Thousands to New York; Pullman Reservations on Outgoing Trains Sold Three Days in Advance

Thousands upon thousands of persons, laden with bags, bundles and youngsters of assorted sizes, are streaming all day long through the Pennsylvania and Grand Central stations, deserting the city to spend Christmas in their home towns.

They bump and struggle against another wave of humanity flowing in the opposite direction and also bag, bundle and youngster-laden, all deserting their home towns to spend Christmas in the city.

In consequence, at Yuletide the railroads and hotels are facing an unprecedented situation. Extra trains and extra cars have been put on to cope with the outgoing horde and have not been able to do so. It was impossible yesterday to get a Pullman reservation for almost anywhere in the United States for the next three days.

It was equally impossible to get a hotel reservation in the city for the next week. Nothing could be felt but the city's hotels, unless it is the outgoing trains. Many persons who intended to go home and put off arrangements for their departure until yesterday were forced at the last minute to remain in New York.

Quite as many who looked forward to spending Christmas in New York have been obliged, after frantic and futile telegraphing to one hotel after another, to stay at home.

Hotel proprietors believe that the incoming wave of humanity started originally in the hope that New York would be "wet" on Christmas, and when this hope was dashed decided to come along anyhow.

A supposed prohibition has something to do with it. One of these said yesterday, "For there has been a general feeling, I think, that by the time the visitor arrived the Supreme Court would declare the wartime act unconstitutional. If now the visitor is disappointed for such a reason he is saying little about it and seems determined to make the best of his stay over Christmas."

Theaters have shared in the general boom of trade. Most of them are already practically sold out for the holiday week, and tickets for some of the most popular shows in town are going at record breaking prices.

Many of the city's Christmas visitors have come from Cuba and South and Central America.

Trustees of Science Church Win Decision

Court's Ruling Is Tentative, However; Ten Days Granted for Exceptions

BOSTON, Dec. 20.—A tentative draft of the findings of Judge Frederic Dodge as master, said to be favorable to the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society, was handed today to counsel for the trustees and for the directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist. The trustees brought suit last March to have the directors restrained from interfering with their conduct of the publishing society's affairs.

Counsel for both sides were given ten days in which to file exceptions or objections. After passing upon these Judge Dodge will hand down his final decision, probably early in the new year.

Judge Dodge refused to make any statement regarding his findings, but authorized counsel for the trustees and for the directors to make any and every statement they saw fit after conferring with each other. Although refusing to be quoted, counsel allowed it to be known the master had found that the trustees had established their contention that there was in no way subordinate to the directors, and that the two boards were interdependent and that the directors had no legal power to reprimand or remove members of the board of trustees.

The trustees, Herbert W. Eastie, of Boston; David B. Ogden, of Brooklyn, and Lamont Rowlands, of Plainville, Miss., filed their bill in equity in the State Supreme Court after the directors had removed Rowlands from the board of trustees on the ground that he had "allowed a sense of self-interest to interfere with the interests of Christian Science." The court granted a temporary injunction and after hearings referred the case to Judge Dodge as master.

The directors ended this deed gave them full powers over the trustees. The trustees contended that the directors' power was limited and that they had no right to remove any member of the board of trustees.

Do Not Speak on Russian Affairs as "Revolutionist"

In a report of an address delivered in Carnegie Hall on December 15 by A. A. Berle Jr., an officer in the United States reserve army, former member of the Russian delegation at Paris and associate of William C. Bullitt, The Tribune inadvertently stated that Mr. Berle referred to himself as "not merely a radical revolutionist," thus placing Mr. Berle in a position which he asserts he does not maintain.

Mr. Berle said he did not speak as a "revolutionist," but as a man familiar with Russian affairs as they were handled at the peace conference. He is a lawyer by profession and asserted yesterday that in revealing an alleged agreement between France, England and Italy concluded in 1917 to divide Russia among themselves, he based his information upon a report of a big committee in the French Chamber of Deputies and statements made by Stephen Pichon, the French Foreign Minister.

Santa Claus Pays Advance Call at Stock Exchange

3,000 Crowd Floor at Record Christmas Party; Children Get Toys and Candy and Employees a 10% Bonus

Down in Wall Street yesterday afternoon the sightseer or casual observer probably wondered why there was so much noise coming from the Stock Exchange, which usually closes its doors on Saturday shortly after trading in securities ends at noon. By investigating he would have learned that the big trading floor had been turned into an entertainment hall, and the employees had assembled there to enjoy what was voted the greatest Christmas celebration in the history of the exchange.

More than 3,000 were present to receive the gifts and enjoy the entertainment donated and provided by the members of the exchange. These included runners, messenger boys, guards, special police, clerks and officials, along with their sweethearts and their wives and children. Many brokers who had invited their friends and families down to witness the festival were unable to get on to the crowded floor, so they filled the galleries and enjoyed the celebration from that vantage point.

The music of the afternoon was supplied by the 7th Regiment Band, which included among its selections "Adeste Fideles," "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful," and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Marchall M. Bartholomew, song leader of the National War Work Council, led the singing.

Flying Club Honors Memory of Alcock

Board of Governors Lauds Achievements of First Aviator to Cross the Atlantic

A message of condolence was sent to the family of Sir John Alcock—the first man to make a non-stop flight across the Atlantic Ocean—by the board of governors of the American Flying Club yesterday. This action followed a special meeting called in response to the request of the members of the club, the majority of whom are active flyers. The message reads:

"In the death of Captain Alcock, the world has suffered a great and irreparable loss, and the science of aviation, for whose advancement he so unselfishly risked his life, has lost one of its most daring and beloved leaders. The whole world will long remember the heroic flight of Captain Alcock in this new science of aviation, and its future progress will be largely due in no small measure to the inspiration and courage he displayed in flying the pioneer non-stop plane across the Atlantic."

"The board of governors of the American Flying Club, on behalf of its membership, desires to extend to the great nation to which his life was dedicated the profoundest sympathy and to the family of Captain Alcock their deepest sympathy in this hour of sorrow."

Captain Alcock was fatally injured in an airplane accident in France on Friday.

Heavy Losses Suffered In Frozen Vegetables

Fruit Also Frostdamaged and Dealers Hesitate to Bring in Large Supplies

Heavy losses were suffered by shippers and receivers of perishable fruit and vegetables in the late cold spell, according to officials of the State Department of Farms and Markets. Virtually all the perishables which have arrived here in the last week have come either partly frosted or completely destroyed.

Because of fear of heavy losses dealers have hesitated to bring in large supplies, with the result that there are comparatively small supplies on hand here, although the demand is powerful and consistent. One consignment of many hundreds of packages of parsley, carrots, beets, romaine and beans from Bermuda virtually was destroyed in transit and was refused by local consignees.

It is expected that Edwin O'Malley, Markets Commissioner, will inspect some of these supposedly frozen commodities, with a view to obtaining them at a nominal price and distributing them to the poor.

Court Upholds Music School in Quiet Block

Petition for Injunction Charging Peace of Neighborhood Is Disturbed, Is Rejected

Manfred Malkin will continue to conduct his music school at 10 West 122d Street and Mrs. Hattie E. Van Santvoord, owner of the property, will continue to rent the house for that purpose, under a decision handed down yesterday by the Appellate Division.

Frank J. Baumert, of 4 West 122d Street, and Louis and Louise Bender, of 8 West 122d Street, brought an injunction proceeding to restrain Mrs. Van Santvoord from renting her property as a music school and against Malkin to prevent his conducting the institution.

The plaintiffs complained that "the quiet, peace and comfort of the neighborhood were disturbed by objectionable, unpleasant and discordant sounds and noises of both vocal and instrumental origin."

This contention, it was contended, destroyed the quiet residential character of the block, which was guaranteed under a restriction agreement entered into in 1887 between Henry Morgenthau and Walter F. Kilpatrick, who owned the property in the block at that time.

The court in its decision expressed the belief that the restriction providing for private residences applied only to the time the houses were constructed and was not a restriction in perpetuity.

D'Annunzio Calls Off Plebiscite on Fiume

Poet Declares He Will Remain in Command of City; Purpose Not Disclosed

FUJINE, Dec. 20.—The plebiscite that was to have been held here to determine whether the proposals made by General Badoglio, the Italian chief of staff, for the settlement of the Fiume dispute, involving the withdrawal of the D'Annunzio forces and the occupation of the city by regular Italian troops, has been abandoned. D'Annunzio made public announcement to-night that the plebiscite had been annulled. He declared he himself would remain in command of the city.

The foregoing dispatch does not make it definitely clear whether D'Annunzio has decided against acceptance of the Badoglio proposals. A Fiume dispatch yesterday reports that strong pressure was being exerted in some quarters against the proposals and that other elements were demanding stronger guarantees of the ultimate annexation of Fiume to Italy, and insisting that the proposal for a plebiscite be maintained there under command of D'Annunzio. To-day's advice may mean that D'Annunzio has decided upon this latter course pending developments.

Teachers Chided by Hyman for Raising Pay Increase Fund

Mayor Says They Should Look to City Instead of Legislature and Schools for Lack of Discipline

Mayor Hyman yesterday wrote a letter to Anning S. Prall, president of the Board of Education, scolding the officers of the Teachers' Federation for appealing for funds to the members of the organization, which embraces most of the teachers.

"The politicians of the educational system are again busy asking the teachers for contributions on the pretext that the money will be necessary for the preparation of legal papers, court fees, travelling expenses, postage, printing, circulating, campaigning for legislative action," said the Mayor.

The Mayor chided the teachers for going to the Legislature for an increase in pay instead of depending on the Board of Estimate for an increase, and praised himself for his attitude toward the teachers. He did not mention, however, that when one of them appeared at a meeting of the Board of Estimate before they got the raise from the Legislature he said those who did not like the money they were getting could look for other jobs.

"There is no necessity," said the Mayor, "for any member of the teaching staff to contribute one cent toward the above mentioned purposes, as the teachers will be dealt with fairly and justly by the Board of Education."

"There is no discipline in the educational system under Superintendent Rossmore, Lancaster, of Worcester, Mass. They will travel in France, Mr. Warburton enlisted in the Signal Corps and received a commission as lieutenant. He served with the Army of Occupation and was assistant to the Hoover commission to Poland."

Grandson of John Wanamaker Sails for France With Bride

Barclay H. Warburton Jr., of Philadelphia, grandson of John Wanamaker, who was married in Elkhart, Md., December 10, sailed yesterday for Havre on the French liner Rochambeau, accompanied by his bride, who was Miss Rosamond Lancaster, of Worcester, Mass. They will travel in France, Mr. Warburton enlisted in the Signal Corps and received a commission as lieutenant. He served with the Army of Occupation and was assistant to the Hoover commission to Poland.

School Plans Job Census

New York University announced yesterday the formation of a faculty committee to carry out an occupational census of its graduates. The purpose of the census is to bring graduates in touch with occupations for which they are best fitted. The committee includes John Thomas Madden, of the Department of Accounting; Henry P. Fairchild, professor of social economics, and Chauncey Porter, assistant secretary of the School of Commerce.

W. W. Mills Gets $5,000 Job

William Wirth Mills was appointed Deputy Commissioner of Plant and Structures by Mayor Hyman yesterday. The job, which pays $5,000 a year, carries control of the State Island Ferry. The new deputy commissioner is secretary of the Staten Island Civic League. His work was formerly done by Lawrence Manion, who resigned.
